ARGUE FOR NEW TRIAL IN MIGHELL CASE

ATTORNEYS SPEND ENTIRE DAY IN ARGUMENTS BEFORE
JUDGE FARRAND.

ERWIN SAYS CASE IS NOT PROVEN

Without Defendant's Admissions the Proof Is Insufficient—States
Attorney in Reply.

Arguments on the motions for a new trial in the Ira Mighell case were taken up in Judge Farrand's court this morning. Attorney Erwin conducting the case for the defendant and States Attorney Edwards fighting the motion for the new hearing.

Mr. Erwin asks a new trial on the grounds that the court erred in giving certain instructions for the state and in refusing to give certain instructions for the defense, that the verdict was not warranted by the evidence, that there was no evidence introduced in the trial that showed that any blow Ira Mighell had delivered had caused the fracture which resulted in the death of Emory Kincaid on the Galena avenue bridge Saturday night, June 3.

No Conflict in Evidence.
Mighell's attorney first reviewed the indictment, itemizing each of the nine counts. He then proceeded to a review of the testimony. He said: "There is absolutely no conflict in the evidence on the vital issues in this case. Tom and Harry Tyler and John Remington tell partially of things that happened on the bridge at that time and all of their evidence is admitted and augmented by the defendant himself. Sheriff Reid and Officer Gaffney merely tell of certain admissions made by Mighell at the time of his arrest.

"Therefore, I maintain that in this case the state is depending wholly on the admission of Ira Mighell, the defendant. The state's eye witnesses tell of seeing but one blow. Mighell admits that blow and another blow. Remington says the one blow was delivered on the neck. Tom Tyler didn't see any blow, and Harry Tyler says it might have been on the side of the head, the neck or the shoulder.

"The sheriff and policeman tell of Mighell admitted having struck Kincaid, and they say the defendant said at that time, 'I gave him a little blow, and then a punch.' If Mighell at the time of his arrest, immediately after the fracas, without any time to plan a defense, tells the same story as he did on the stand, this court and a jury cannot accept the statements he made that are against his favor, and eliminate those things he said which are favorable to him. If the state accepts his admissions to prove their case they must abide by them.

Neck Blow Not Fatal.

"The prosecution's star witnesses, the physicians who performed the autopsy, say a blow on the neck could not have produced the fracture that produced death. A blow of sufficient force to produce that fracture would have to be in an upward direction and of great violence. Such a blow would have bruised the tissues of the jaw. No blow with the fist on the upper jaw could have produced the fracture and split the lip without breaking some of the smaller bones of the face. None of these were broken. These are the admissions of the prosecution's doctors.

"The state has proven but one blow, and that on the neck and in a downward direction. Their doctors say this blow could not have caused the fracture. Then, where is their case, without the admissions of the defendant himself? Therefore, if it please the court, this defendant's statement, which has not been contradicted in any particular, and on part of which the state depends for its case, must be accepted. He must be believed when he says Kincaid fell into the railing of the bridge. The state's doctors say a fall forward and downward onto some hard substance could produce the injury, but that a fist could not.

PAUL BEATTIE IN LIMELIGHT

Statement Signed by Him Admits Perjury as Witness.

LURED AWAY AND DRUGGED

Cousin of Condemned Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., Swears that He Was Made Unwilling Instrument in Last Effort to Stop Execution.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 15.—Governor Mann received from counsel for Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., an affidavit purporting to have been signed by Paul Beattie in Washington, sworn to before Walter C. Blanderston, a notary of repute. It reads as follows:

"I, Paul D. Beattie, residing at 201 Randolph street, Richmond, Va., make the following statement of my own free will and accord and without promise of reward or compensation of any kind:

"Realizing at the time I was held in jail as a witness for forty-seven days that I was in a bad position and that suspicion was directed against me, for that reason I made statements regarding various matters at the Beattie trial while I was on the stand that were untrue.

"Since the verdict I have given the matter careful thought and I have decided to make the following statement:

"That I did not give the gun in question to my cousin, Henry Clay Beattie, Saturday night, July 15, 1911, and that I had said so Sunday, July 16, 1911, at the cement house near the Mayo bridge, as stated by E. H. Neblett on the witness stand, and that H. C. Beattie, Jr., did not make a confession to me on his father's porch, nor had he ever made such a confession to me at any time or place.

"PAUL BEATTIE."
Saturday night last Paul Beattie and his wife called at the police station and in the presence of Captain McMahon and Detective Kellam made a sworn statement that he had never visited a notary in Washington and had not made an affidavit, but acknowledged having signed the "sympathetic letter" to his uncle.

Paul Beattie alleges that he was lured to Washington on promises of obtaining work, was drugged and made to sign the papers in question.

Commonwealth's Attorney Gregory of Chesterfield county, when asked if any steps would be taken to arrest Paul Beattie in view of the alleged confession, said it was a matter the governor or the attorney general would have to decide.

STATE'S ATTORNEY ACCUSED

Policeman Keeley Tells Various Things
About J. E. W. Wayman.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Patrick J. Keeley, a policeman formerly attached to the state's attorney's office, made a varied assortment of charges against State's Attorney Wayman before the Lorimer investigation committee of the senate.

For the most part Mr. Keeley's testimony was the same which, when given in the second trial of Lee O'Neil Browne, resulted in his indictment, conviction and acquittal on the second trial, after a reversal by the supreme court, for perjury. In return for Mr. Wayman's efforts to send him to the penitentiary on the perjury charge and to have him discharged from the police force Mr. Keeley not only told the committee everything he could think of against Mr. Wayman in connection with the investigation of the Lorimer case, but also made numerous insinuations against him on matters not related to the present inquiry.

ELEVEN—CROWD OF ROOTERS GOING.

Dixon college football team and rooters are looking for another good time and incidentally another victory in Chicago Saturday afternoon when they meet the Loyola college eleven at the West End park there. Encouraged by their victory over DePaul last Saturday, the Dixon players will make every effort to annex this game thus calling more favorable attention to the local school.

Dixon is favorite in Chicago in the coming game, as DePaul, whom Dixon beat last Saturday 12 to 5, has defeated Loyola by a 5 to 3 score. The students of the local school are organizing a rooting crowd to accompany the team to the city and thus encourage the local players to greater efforts.

There will be a special car attached to the Sterling passenger Saturday morning for the accommodation of the Dixon college football team and their rooters. Anyone desiring to go please notify I. F. Edwards and arrangements will be made. It is expected that quite a crowd will accompany the team to root.

John Luhman of Belvidere was passing at the time and went to the assistance of the injured boy. Neighbors were summoned and they worked strenuously in removing the timbers from the boy. He was alive when he was taken out but died soon after.

FEAR FOR CAPTAIN LARSEN

Intrepid Navigator of Niagara May Have Perished in Lake Erie.

Toledo, O., Nov. 15.—No word has been received since Sunday from Captain Klaus Larsen, who, in his little motor boat in which he navigated the rapids and whirlpool of Niagara, started Saturday from Buffalo to Detroit.

Leaving Buffalo, Captain Larsen steered for Port Dalzousie and was reported there Saturday noon. He expected to continue his trip along the north shore of Lake Erie to the Detroit river. The trip across Lake Erie at this time of the year, with storm warnings flying, was considered by Larsen's friends as almost as daring as his spectacular trips through the whirlpool rapids. Friends in Detroit are anxiously awaiting word from him, fearing that he may have been caught in the terrific storm which lashed Lake Erie from Saturday night until Tuesday morning.

GIVES UP A PULPIT TO BECOME REPORTER

ROCK ISLAND PASTOR PREFERS
JOURNALISM TO LIFTING CHURCH DEBT.

Rock Island, Nov. 15.—Rev. W. J. Leach, recently appointed to the pastorate of the Spence Memorial M. E. church of this city, has forsaken the clergy for newspaperdom. Resigning his charge here he will begin his journalistic career in Pekin, Ill., his former home, as a reporter for a local newspaper.

The clergyman came to Rock Island and found confronting him a congregational debt of $1,000. The task of liquidating this indebtedness of his parish overwhelmed him. It was too much to expect of a single clergyman to accomplish, he thought, and resigned forthwith and obtained a position as a reporter.

GUN WHEN WEAPON WAS DISCHARGED.

Pinkerton was out hunting when for some reason his gun refused to operate. He pounded it on the ground several times, with his right hand over the muzzle of the barrel, when it was discharged, the shot taking away the index finger. He was hurried to Dixon at once and was taken to the hospital, where his injury was dressed.

FAMOUS EXPERT IN CARE OF ROADS SPEAKS HERE
SATURDAY.

PUBLIC SPIRITED CITIZENS CO

Commissioners and Property Owners
Interested in Good Roads
at Small Cost.

D. Ward King, the inventor of the King split log road drag and recognized as the greatest authority on road building in the country, will address a public meeting at the city hall in Dixon Saturday at 1:30 p. m. Every highway commissioner and farmer and business man in the county should hear the address and make it necessary to adjourn the meeting to the largest hall in the city that all may hear the valuable information which Mr. King has to give on care of roads.

One hour with King is worth more than a state appropriation for good roads.

If you came to the cross-roads and knew it was six miles of smooth, dry roads to one town, and five miles of rough, mud-hole roads to another town, where would you trade that day? Can you do more to prove your interest in the community than to introduce a man who can show how to improve the roads and by the same act save the community's money?

A proposal to save road funds and build good roads by the same act sounds paradoxical, but D. Ward King explains how it is done. Moreover, the people fix the roads the next day.

The "show me" state offers a show you man in the person of D. Ward King, who has shown states and nations how to build good roads without money.

Every community needs an hour with King to get his idea, which if carried out puts the town at the end of the great highway, makes the town the trade center for a far bigger territory than you ever dreamed of reaching.

That's why you need King's famous lecture on Road Mending this year.

King usually closes his remarks within an hour but his audience often detains him 30 minutes answering questions. Occasionally Mr. King has been kept on his feet two hours and a quarter.

King informs, enthuses and inspires. The good roads agitation is popular—the only drawback being the great expense, but in the King system we have a proposition, the only drawback of which is its simplicity.

The time is here when good country roads are a necessity. If you are not interested in good roads from a public standpoint you are vitally interested in them for a selfish one.

SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

PAST AND PROSPECTIVE

The Gift Shop is full of beautiful holiday gifts. It is impossible to enumerate them. We invite you to come early and avoid the Christmas rush.

BIRTHDAY HOROSCOPES.

NOV. 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18.

Are of a fiery, persistent, determined nature, but you often get strangely cheated and taken advantage of. You are great at planning and scheming, but not always successful. You have musical ability. You despise technique. Have a deep intense leaning toward the mysterious and occult. Are a deep student of causation. You rarely get paid for what you do.

Phidian Art Club.

A very interesting meeting of the Phidian Art club occurred yesterday afternoon at the pleasant home of Mrs. P. G. Lord in North Dixon. The many members present were given entertainment by a vocal duet, "Divine Love," by Smart, given by Mrs. E. M. Goodsell and Willard D. Beach of Rockford with Mrs. L. E. Edwards at the piano. The perfect blending and harmony of the two beautiful voices gave much pleasure.

Miss Anna Woodbridge then read "The Story of the English Bible," a paper that made a strong impression upon those present, for it was the eventful history of a loved book, presented by a Christian lady in a most charming manner. Touching briefly upon the dark ages before Christ, she gave in detail the history of the bible from its introduction into England, the coming of Augustine and his monks, bringing to England Roman letters, Hebrew literature and the Christian religion. She told of Caedmon's paraphrase of the Bible in Verse, of the work and lives of the early translators, and the difficulties and persecutions under which they labored, describing the different versions, the Mathews, Geneva, Bishop's, etc. King James, called the Theologian King, authorized the 1611 version, the translation being completed in that year, the present year, 1911, being the Bible Tercentenary.

Mrs. Joseph Petersberger followed with a most capable and excellent paper upon English Organs and Organists, tracing these musical instruments from their crude beginning through the various evolutions and advancements, naming and describing many of the famous organs of England, including the largest in the world, that at Sydney, New South Wales. Organs are judged by the volume, variety, and delicacy of tones. Some of the early organists mentioned were John Redfern, Christopher Tyde, Thos. Tallys and Dr. Bull, the latter being regarded as a pioneer whose ideas led to great results. Germany claims Bach as the world's greatest organist, but England compares his work with Handel's to the advantage of the latter. One of the greatest living organists is Edward Henry LeMare, who is contemplating his second American tour.

Mrs. O. B. Dodge and Miss Agnes Raymond poured, in the dining room where the hostess, assisted by her daughter, served dainty refreshments and a social hour closed the program.

Items of News.

This is how one publisher appeals to the readers of his paper to get them to send in items of news: It is a courtesy to your guests to see that their names appear in the local newspaper. It is due your friends and yourself that when visiting, their names should appear in the paper. Someone in the family should inform the paper of sickness in the home. Remember that the newspaper is made by human hands and brains and if the item concerning yourself or your family does not appear, it is largely your fault.

Mystic Workers.

The regular meeting of the Mystic Workers will be held this evening in Union hall. Nominations for officers will be made. After 9:30 o'clock the public is invited to attend a dance by the order. Everybody will be welcome.

Ladies Aid Society.

The Ladies Aid society of the Christian church will hold an all day meeting at the church tomorrow afternoon.

Club at Sultus.

The Pioneer Whist club is enjoying a meeting and dinner today at the cottage, Sultus, up the river.

Chautauqua Circle.

The Chautauqua circle enjoyed a meeting last evening with Miss Faith Neighbour and a pleasant and interesting evening was spent.

At Roe Home.

Miss Mary Hussey of Franklin Grove is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Roe.

Wedding Anniversary.

Monday was the 6th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Scott, residing north of town and 29 friends and neighbors gathered to help them celebrate the event in a proper manner, although their coming was a surprise to the host and hostess, who, however, recovered from the pleasant shock and the evening was spent with cards and several musical numbers were also enjoyed. At 11 o'clock an oyster supper was served and afterward the guests departed with happy memories of the delightful evening.

Series of Dances.

A number of local people have organized a dancing club for a series of dances during the winter, the first of which will be given Dec. 20. Seeley's orchestra has been engaged for the first party.

Dixon Woman's Club.

The Music department of the Dixon Woman's club held their second meeting at the pleasant home of Mrs. Elmer Countryman on Monday afternoon. The club members and their guests certainly enjoyed a very rare treat.

Wagner was the composer to be considered. Prof. Stoddard first played a charming double number, "Evening Star," and "March" from Tannhauser. Mrs. Vail then read a brief biography of the composer. Prof. Stoddard delighted the club by playing from Liszt's "The King" and "Elsa's Prayer."

Mrs. Vail gave a very interesting and able paper on "The Reconstruction of the Opera," after which Prof. Stoddard gave as a closing number a selection from "Walkure." A poem, Suetta's Song, Overture, The Flying Dutchman was most beautifully read by Mrs. Burnham, which closed one of the most delightful programs of the year. The club highly appreciates and thanks Prof. Stoddard for his help.

The hostess then served light refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed.

Engraved calling cards at the Telegraph office. They make a most suitable gift.

Card Party Tonight.

There will be a card party this evening in Masonic hall given by Dorothy chapter and the Masonic Fraternity and friends are invited to attend. A small admission will be taken at the door and refreshments will be served.

Foresters' Day

Tomorrow is Foresters' day at the Catholic fair and men and women are invited to play cards in the afternoon. There will also be an apron sale, and the ladies will also have full charge in the evening and promise a very interesting program.

MANY INSPECTED THE WAGON FACTORY

ENTERTAINED BY OFFICERS OF COMPANY AND ENJOYED THE VISIT.

Reception day at the American Wagon company factory in this city today was a winner. The most optimistic hopes of the officers, all of whom are present for the affair, were surpassed, for several hundred people, most of them from out of the city, have visited the big institution and seen how the great Melrose convertible wagon beds are made, enjoyed refreshments and music, and many of them ordered boxes, too.

The visitors were given free access to every part of the factory, and under the guidance of the officers watched the manufacture of the boxes, from the lumber pile to the paint tanks. Refreshments were served from 11:30 to 1:30 and the Dixon Marine band helped enliven things with spirited and appreciated music.

Age Limit.

Ellen Terry, the actress, was one day talking about the many women who asked her to help them get on the stage, when she said: "Every woman under 30 imagines that she is an actress. And every actress believes that she is under 20."

Keep Hope Alive.

Never abandon hope. Remember that no earnest effort is ever lost. Get away from the habit of looking on the dark side. Nothing will so completely paralyze the creative power of the mind as a dark, gloomy, discouraged mental attitude. It keeps multitudes of people from obtaining the very things they most desire.

When a Man Runs.

There are men in this world who will run miles in any weather to avoid talking to a woman who knows more than they do, and knows it, and shows that she knows that she knows it.—Henry Sydney Harrison.

Remarkable Work.

"What do you regard as the most remarkable work in the English language?" "Well," replied Miss Cayenne, "the most remarkable work in the English language that I know of is the way some Englishmen pronounce it."

Horse and Hen.

It takes a blacksmith to shoe a horse, but anybody can shoe a hen.

Apt Definition.

A gentleman being in company with the earl of Chatham was asked by his lordship for his definition of wit. "Wit," he replied, "my lord, is what a pension would be, given by your lordship to your humble servant—a good thing well applied."

Dramatic Notes

FAMILY THEATRE

LeVere and Palmer appeared before increased audiences the second night of their engagement at the Family theatre, the house being filled at both performances. Their production, A Garden of Dreams, is one of the most refined, artistic and entertaining bills which has appeared here and their engagement is a winner for the local house. This evening will be the last opportunity to see them, as the program changes tomorrow. New pictures are on the bill each evening.

Tonight Claude LeVere will sing as an encore number "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

PRINCESS THEATRE.

Don't miss the good program at the Princess for tonight. The program is well balanced with a western picture, a comedy and a love drama. Grandfather is the title of a picture in which the old man in his detestable conceals some money in a fire place and a young man is accused of the theft by the father of his sweetheart. The old man brings the money forth at a critical moment. The picturesque country scenes, clever acting and beautiful photography make the film what it is. The next picture, The Blotted Brand, is a western drama. The last picture is entitled, The Moth, a comedy that will bring uproarious laughter.

DIXON OPERA HOUSE

Cohan and Harris' company presenting "The Fortune Hunter," Winchell Smith's charming comedy of rural life, will be the attraction at the Opera House Thursday evening, Nov. 16th.

That a playwright of these modern days need not resort to salaciousness to attract the patronage of amusement seekers, has been most and many foolish people are cursed with it, because they have listened to incompetent vendors of spectacles and eye-glasses, and bought and used glasses that gave temporary relief while permanently ruining the eyesight. I fit glasses that remove the strain on the eyes, and make vision easy and comfortable. Come and see me and I will fit glasses to your eyes that will permanently relieve your eye strain. Don't delay; come now.

convincingly demonstrated in the popularity of this charming comedy, with its insistent appeal for the uplifting of the morals of the youth of today, and that Winchell Smith, its author, has provided such a clean, wholesome play and filled it with lines that contain as profitable a sermon as was ever delivered from a pulpit; surrounded it with an atmosphere of joyous mirth, and punctuated it with broad comedy situations, that while never offending, make a strenuous demand for laughter, is a tribute being paid by thousands of playgoers, and a lesson to the contemporaries who desire to have their names enrolled on the scroll of successful dramatists. "The Fortune Hunter" points the way. It is a wonderfully clever comedy—constructed along perfect lines, and as an example of play construction, has few equals and no superiors on the American stage. Seats are now on sale at Campbell's Drug Store. Prices 50 75 cents, $1.00 and $1.50.

are likely to find life and its duties a burden. To be tied down to the house day in and day out may turn even home into a prison! Women require a little change.

However some people think poor health is Fate's decree! At any rate to see others blithe and buoyant doing and going, while they suffer, certainly points that way!

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 30th birthday with a friendly crowd of miners at the Circle City Tavern. He is a general favorite, a hero and a pioneer in the new gold fields. The dance leads to heavy gambling in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract of the district.

CHAPTER II.—Burning Daylight starts on his trip to deliver the mail with dogs and sledges. He tells his friends that the big Yukon gold strike will soon be on and he intends to be in it at the start. With Indian attendants and dogs he dips over the bank and down the frozen Yukon and in the gray light is gone.

CHAPTER III.—Harnish makes a seasonally rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Circle City Tavern and is another character in the celebration. He has made a record against cold and exhaustion and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields.

CHAPTER IV.—Harnish decides where the gold will be found in the up-river district and buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold before the season is over.

CHAPTER V.—When Daylight arrives with his heavy outfit of flour he finds the big flat desolate. A comrade discovers gold and Harnish reaps a rich harvest. He goes to Dawson, begins investing in corner lots and staking other miners and becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike.

CHAPTER VI.—Harnish makes fortune after fortune. One lucky investment enables him to defeat a great combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He determines to return to civilization and gives a farewell celebration to his friends which is remembered as a kind of blaze of glory.

CHAPTER VII.—The papers are full of "The King of the Klondike." Daylight is feted by the money magnates of the country. They take him into a big copper deal and the Alaskan pioneer finds himself amid the bewildering complications of high finance.

CHAPTER VIII.—Daylight is buncoed by the money men and finds that he has been led to invest his eleven millions in a manipulated scheme. He goes to meet his disloyal business partners at their offices in New York City.

CHAPTER IX.—Confronting his partners with a revolver in characteristic frontier style, he threatens to kill them if his money is not returned. They are cowed into submission, return their stakings and Harnish goes back to San Francisco with his unimpaired fortune.

CHAPTER X.—Daylight meets his fate in Dede Mason, a pretty stenographer with a crippled brother. They are drawn together by the same force. Harnish is much attracted towards her and interested in her family affairs.

CHAPTER XI.—He becomes an element in large investments on the Pacific coast and gets into the political ring. For a rest he goes to inspect one of his properties in the country and momentarily is attracted back to the old life on the lone-some trail.

CHAPTER XII.—Daylight gets deeper and deeper into high finance in San Francisco. He makes frequent runs into the country thus getting close to nature, but his mind is still in the speculation trend. Very often, however, the longing for the simple life well night overcomes him.

CHAPTER XIII.—Dede Mason buys a horse and Daylight meets her in her saddle trips. He begins to ride in horseback riding and manages to get into her company quite often.

CHAPTER XIV.—One day Daylight asks Dede to go with him on one more ride, his purpose being to ask her to marry him, and they enter away, she trying to analyze her feelings.

CHAPTER XV.—Dede tells Daylight that she likes him but that her happiness could not be with a money manipulator. She suggests the vast good he could do with his wealth if he so inclined.

CHAPTER XVI.—For the sake of his love, Daylight undertakes the scheme of building up a great industrial community among the hills. He wins her regard by interesting himself in her crippled brother.

CHAPTER XVII.—Dede finally tells Daylight she does not dare marry a man who is so engrossed with the business game. He is insistent and yet hopes to win her.

CHAPTER XVIII.—Daylight falls back into the old drinking ways and then rouses up from the same, realizing that he is not the sturdy pioneer of the rude Alaskan days.

"Let's go and get married," he urged, all the whimsicality of his utterance duplicated in his eyes. "I've been working like forty horses ever since this blamed panic set in, and all the time some of those ideas you'd given me were getting ready to sprout. Well, they sprouted this morning, that's all. I knew I wanted to ride in the hills with you just about thirty million times more than I wanted to go to the office. And I knew all the time it was impossible. And why? Because of the office. The office wouldn't let me. And then I made up my mind that I was to the dividing of the ways. One way led to the office. The other way led to Berkeley. And I took the Berkeley road. I'm never going to set foot in the office again. That's all gone, finished, over and done with, and I'm letting it slide clean to smash and then some. I'm wiping the slate clean. I'm letting it all go smash. When them thirty million dollars stood up to my face and said I couldn't go out with you in the hills today, I knew the time had come for me to put my foot down. And I'm putting it down. I've got you, and my strength to work for you, and that little ranch in Sonoma. That's all I want, and that's all I'm going to save out, along with Bob and Wolf, a suit case and a hundred and forty hair brushes. All the rest goes, and good riddance. It's that much junk."

A knock at the door interrupted him, and he was left to stare delightedly at the Crouched Venus and on around the room at Dede's dainty possessions, while she answered the telephone office: what are you going to do about it?"

"Nothing," Daylight drawled lazily. "Except let them smash, I guess. I've had no dealings with Grimsbaw and Hodgkins. I don't owe them anything. Besides, I'm going to smash myself. Look here, Larry, you know me. You know when I make up my mind I mean it. Well, I've sure made up my mind. I'm tired of the whole game. I'm letting go of it as fast as I can, and a smash is the quickest way to let go. All you've got to do is to protect yourself and all our friends. Now you listen to me while I tell you what to do. Everything is in good shape to do it. Nobody must get hurt. Everybody that stood by me must come through without damage. All the back wages and salaries must be paid pronto. All the money I've switched away from the water company, the street cars, and the ferries must be switched back. And you won't get hurt yourself none. Every company you got stock in will come through."

"What have you done to him?" Hegan snarled at Dede.

"Hold on there, Larry." For the first time Daylight's voice was sharp, while all the old lines of cruelty in his face stood forth. "Miss Mason is going to be my wife, and while I don't mind your talking to her all you want, you've got to use a different tone of voice or you'll be heading for a hospital, which will sure be an unexpected sort of smash. And let me tell you one other thing. This all is my doing. She says I'm crazy, too."

Dede stepped forward where she confronted the two men.

"Wait," she said. "I want to say something. Elam, if you do this insane thing, I won't marry you. I refuse to marry you."

"I'll take my chance on that," Daylight said. "And now, Larry, you'd better be going. I'll be at the hotel in a little while, and since I'm not going to step into the office again, bring all papers to sign and the rest over to my rooms. And you can get me on the 'phone there any time. This smash is going through. Savvy? I'm quit and done."

He turned to Dede as soon as Hegan was gone, and took her by the hand.

"And now, little woman, you needn't come to the office any more. Consider yourself discharged."

"I'd cry, if I thought it would do any good," she threatened.

"In which case I reckon I'd have to hold you in my arms some more and sort of soothe you down," he threatened back.

As he stood at the top of the steps, leaving, she said:

"You needn't send those men. There will be no packing, because I am not going to marry you."

"I'm not a bit scared," he answered, and went down the steps.

CHAPTER XX.

Three days later, Daylight rode to Berkeley in his red car. It was for the last time, for on the morrow the big machine passed into another's possession. It had been a strenuous three days, for his smash had been the biggest panic had precipitated in California. The papers had been filled with it, and a great cry of indignation had gone up from the very men who later found that Daylight had fully protected their interests. It was these facts, coming slowly to light, that gave rise to the widely repeated charge that Daylight had gone insane. It was the unanimous conviction among business men that no sane man could possibly behave in such fashion. On the other hand, neither his prolonged steady drinking nor his affair with Dede became public, so the only conclusion attainable was that the wild financier from Alaska had gone lunatic. And Daylight had grinned and confirmed the suspicion by refusing to see the reporter. He halted the automobile before Dede's door, and met her with his same rushing tactics, enclosing her in his arms before a word could be uttered.

"I've done it," he announced.

"You've seen the newspapers, of course. I'm plumb cleaned out, and I've just called around to find out what day you feel like starting for Glen Ellen. It'll have to be soon, for it's real expensive living in Oakland these days. My board at the hotel is only paid to the end of the week, and I can't afford to stay on after that. And beginning with tomorrow I've got to use the street cars, and they sure eat up the nickels."

He paused, and waited, and looked at her. Indecision and trouble showed on her face. Then the smile he knew so well began to grow on her lips and in her eyes, until she threw back her head and laughed in the old forthright boyish way.

"When are those men coming to pack for me?" she asked.

And again she laughed and simulated a vain attempt to escape his bear-like arms.

"Dear Elam," she whispered; "dear Elam." And of herself, for the first time, she kissed him.

"Now, I've got an idea," Daylight said. "We're running away from cities, and you have no kith nor kin, so it don't seem exactly right that we should start off by getting married in a city. So here's the idea: I'll run up to the ranch and get things in shape around the house and give the caretaker his walking-papers. You follow me in a couple of days, coming on the morning train. I'll have the preacher fixed and waiting. And here's another idea. You bring your riding tops in a suit case. And as soon as the ceremony's over, you can go to the hotel and change. Then out you come, and you find me waiting with a couple of horses, and we'll ride over the landscape so as you can see the prettiest parts of the ranch the first thing. And she's sure pretty, that ranch. And now that it's settled, I'll be waiting for you at the morning train day after tomorrow."

Dede blushed as she spoke.

"You are such a hurricane," "Well, ma'am," he drawled, "I sure hate to burn daylight. And you and I have burned a heap of daylight. We've been scandalously extravagant. We might have been married years ago."

Two days later, Daylight stood waiting outside the little Glen Ellen hotel. The ceremony was over, and he had left Dede to go inside and change into her riding-habit while he brought the horses. He held them now, Bob and Mab, and in the shadow of the watering-trough Wolf lay and looked on. Already two days of ardent California sun and touched with new fires the ancient bronze in Daylight's face. But warmer still was the glow that came into his cheeks and burned in his eyes as he saw Dede coming out the door, riding-whip in hand, clad in the familiar corduroy skirt and leggings of the old Piedmont days. There was warmth and glow in her own face as she answered his gaze and glanced on past him to the horses. Then she saw Mab. But her gaze leaped back to the man.

"Oh, Elam!" she breathed.

Many persons, themselves city-bred, and city reared, have fled to the soil and succeeded in winning great happiness. In such cases they have succeeded - only by going through a process of savage disillusionment. But with Dede and Daylight it was different. They had both been born on the soil, and they knew its naked simplicities and rawer ways. They were like two persons, after far wandering, who had merely come home again. There was less of the unexpected in their dealings with nature, while theirs was all the delight of reminiscence. What might appear sordid and squalid to the fastidiously reared, was to them eminently wholesome and natural. The commerce of nature was to them no unknown and untried trade. They made fewer mistakes. They already knew, and it was a joy to remember what they had forgotten.

And another thing they learned was that it was easier for one who has gorged at the "flesh-pots" to content himself with the meagreness of a crust, than for one who has known only the crust. Not that their life was meagre. It was that they found keener delights and deeper satisfactions in little things. Daylight, who had played the game in its biggest and most fantastic aspects, found that here, on the slopes of Sonoma Mountain, it was still the same old game. Man had still work to perform, forces to combat, obstacles to overcome. When he experimented in a small way at raising a few pigeons for market, he found no less zest in calculating in squabs than formerly when he had calculated in millions. Achievement was no less achievement, while the process of it seemed more rational and received the sanction of his reason.

FREE IF IT FAILS

Your Money Back if You are not satisfied with the Medicine We Recommend.

We are so positive that our remedy will permanently relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine at our expense should it fail to produce satisfactory results.

It is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Laxatives or cathartics do much harm. They cause a reaction, irritate, and weaken the bowels and tend to make constipation more chronic. Besides, their use becomes a habit that is dangerous.

Constipation is caused by a weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or descending colon. To expect permanent relief you must therefore tone up and strengthen these organs and restore them to healthier activity.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our recommendation. They are exceedingly pleasant to take, being eaten like candy, and are ideal for children, delicate persons, and old folks, as well as for the robust.

They act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They apparently have a neutral action on other associate organs or glands. They do not purge cause excessive looseness, nor create any inconvenience whatever. They may be taken at any time, day or night. They will positively relieve chronic or habitual constipation, if not of surgical variety, and the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments, if taken with regularity for a reasonable length of time. 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Women Fight Duel to Death.

Sapulpa, Okla., Nov. 15.—In a duel on the principal street of this city, Lily Marshall, a freed woman, and Mrs. Laura Smith, an Indian, fought until their friends dragged them apart. The Marshall woman is in jail and Mrs. Smith is dead. Both were oil land holders.

WEAK-NECKED

How the Clerk Knew What Size Collar Was Wanted.

Miss Mary Coleman is the New York lawyer whose wit and eloquence turned a suffragette meeting in Wall Street from failure to success.

"A man doesn't need to be hen-pecked to support our movement," Miss Coleman said afterward. "It is wronging men to say our male supporters are like—like—"

Miss Coleman smiled. "A tall, stout woman seated herself before the haberdashery counter of a department store and said:

"I want to get some collars and neckties for my husband."

"Yes, madam," said the clerk. "What size collars?"

"The woman frowned and bit her lip.

"Sugar!" she said. "To save my life I can't remember!"

"Thirteen? Twelve and a half?" the clerk suggested.

"Why, yes—twelve and a half," said the woman. "How did you guess it?"

"The clerk smiled.

"Gentlemen who let their wives select their ties and collars take that size," he said."

SHRINKAGE.

"She swore that she would love me forever and a day." That was her phrase.

"And didn't she keep her promise?"

"Only partly. She loved me for a day."

Horns of the Dilemma.

It was the meeting of the baseball team in a New England village, and the business before it was the election of a captain for the coming season.

Of the dozen youngsters present, more than half were candidates for the post. First one and then another rose and stated the claims and qualifications of his particular favorite.

The matter was still undecided when the son of the owner of the ball field stood up. He was a small, snub-nosed lad, with a plentiful supply of freckles, but he looked about him with a decided show of dignity and confidence.

"I'm going to be captain this year," he said convincingly, "or else father's old bull is going to be turned into the field."

He was elected unanimously.—Youth's Companion.

To the Odor Born.

A Chicago man who was a member of the committee on reception on the occasion of the visit of the Prince Albert of Belgium a year or two ago, tells of his Highness's inspection of the stockyards.

The Prince received every possible attention and was much interested in the magnitude of the industry and the various processes for disposing of the thousands of cattle and hogs slaughtered every day.

Just before he left he turned to the intelligent young man who had been told to act as his guide and asked:

"Do you never suffer any inconvenience from the odor here?"

"What odor your Highness?" was the naive response of the young man.

A Diet of Apparel.

A Southern Congressman tells in Harper's Weekly of a dandy in a Georgia town whose best quality is his devotion to his aged parent.

Once the Congressman asked Pete why he had never married.

"Why, boss," exclaimed Pete. "Ise got an ole mudder I had t' do for, suh. Ef I doan' buy her shoes an' stockin's she don't git none. Now, boss, you see if I was t' git married I'd have t' buy 'em for mah wife, an' dat'd be takin' de shoes an' stockin's right outter my ole mudder's mouf."

The Limit.

An American visiting London for the first time was goaded to desperation by the incessant necessity for tips. Finally he entered the wash room of his hotel only to be faced by a large sign which read, "Please tip the basin after using."

"Never," said the Yankee, turning on his heel, "I'll go dirty first."

Something the Same.

"Politics must be a very trying profession."

"I don't know," answered Senator Sorghum, "that it is so different in politics from what it is in private life. Your friends all speak well of you and your enemies knock."

Faith Shattered.

"I don't believe in that doctor."

"Why?"

"He didn't tell me everything I wanted to eat was bad for me!"

JUSTIFIABLE

New Evidence Which Influenced the Jury to Acquit Sl.

Extra.—I heard Sl Plummer got a verdict of justified homicide for killin' that summer boarder last August, an' everybody sayin' it was such a cold-blooded crime, too.

Rufus—Wal, that was some new evidence at the trial. Fust, Sl's wife told how, when the feller came, he sees a patch on Sl's trousers an' sez, "I see you got a stitch in your side." Then Sl's little gal got up an' evidenced how the feller followed Sl out to the yard when they was washin' the milk cans an' yells, "Don't you know honesty's the best policy?"

Finely, the hired man swore how, on the day of the murder, after he an' Sl had pitched hay from 5 a. m. to 4 p. m. with the temperature like Haydays in the shade an' New York in the sun, they hears a hyenallike laff behind, and, lookin' up, sees that feller under a tree, with a straw hat, an' his flannel trousers rolled nice an' cool, with a refreshin' bottle in his hand, an' he chirpin', "Go it, Rybe. Make hay while the sun shines!"

A Common Delinquent.

The dean of a normal college, in a talk before the student body, was deploring the practice common among children of getting help in their lessons, and the tendency among parents to give it too generously. As an illustration he told the following incident:

The mother of a small pupil in a Chicago school had struggled through the problems assigned for the child's next lesson, and had finally obtained what appeared to be satisfactory results. The next day, when the little girl returned from school, the mother inquired with some curiosity:

"Were your problems correct, dear?"

"No, mamma," replied the child. "They were all wrong."

"All wrong?" repeated the amazed parent. "Oh, I'm so sorry!"

"Well, mamma, you don't need to be sorry," was the reply. "All the other mammas had theirs wrong, too."

A Case of Wait.

A man who called himself George Arnold was before a Police Court Judge on the charge of stealing a ride on a train to Dagupan, according to Philippine Gossip.

"Where were you?" asked Judge Low, referring to his former place of abode.

"In Manila," was the reply. "I was waiting."

"Waiting for whom?"

"Just waiting."

"What were you waiting for?"

"To get my money."

"Who from?"

"The man I was waiting for."

"What did he owe it to you for?"

"For waiting."

"How did you start in waiting?"

"By beginning to wait."

"What do you mean? Explain yourself."

"I thought you knew I was waiting in a restaurant."

"Oh!" gasped the Judge.

When the Little Man Scored.

A meek-looking little man with a large pasteboard box climbed on the car. As he did so he bumped slightly into a sleepy, corpulent passenger with a self-satisfied look and two little dabs of sidewhiskers. As the car rounded a curve the box rubbed against him again and he growled:

"This is no freight car, is it?"

"Nope," returned the meek little chap with the box, "and when you come right down to it, it ain't any cattle car, either, is it?"

Not Open to Everybody.

A most peculiar effect was produced by an announcement in the advertisements of a county fair to be held in my State," says Congressman Champ Clark. "Among other things, the announcement said that 'attractive features of this great Fair will be highly amusing donkey-races and pig-races.' Then, to the amazement of the judicious, this note was added. 'Competition in these two contests will be open to citizens of the county only!'"

MISSOURI OUSTS HARVESTER CO.

Corporation Is Also Fined $50,000 for Being a Trust.

ACTION BY SUPREME COURT

Effect of Decision Is to Prevent All Companies Which Make Up the Corporation from Doing Business in Missouri.

Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 15.—A commissioner appointed by the state supreme court found the International Harvester company guilty of violating the Missouri anti-trust laws in September, 1910. Last April the case was submitted to the supreme court for affirmation.

The effect of the decision is to prevent all the companies which make up the International Harvester company from conducting further business in the state.

The taking of testimony in the suit began in May, 1908, and continued over a year. Ex-Judge Theodore Bray of Paris, Mo., was the special commissioner appointed by the state supreme court to take testimony in the case. The taking of testimony was conducted by Governor Herbert S. Hadley, who was then attorney general. The testimony in the case covered 1,600 typewritten pages.

One of the witnesses who testified was George W. Perkins of J. P. Morgan & Co. of New York. Perkins was the guiding spirit in the organization of the combine. The testimony of Mr. Perkins and that of Mr. McCormick aided materially in the conviction of the International company.

The International Harvester company, the commissioner declared in his report, by reason of its enormous capital, $120,000,000, could not obtain a license in Missouri, so the International Harvester Company of America, a selling agent, was organized, and obtained a license. This concern, the commissioner said, was organized simply to evade the laws of the state which prevented the holding company from entering.

The commissioner found that the International had practically a monopoly on the sale of binders in Missouri.

Rodgers reiterated his intention to complete his flight as soon as his airplane has been rebuilt.

Nov. 15.

The United States warship San Jacinto, bringing the first news of the seizure on the 8th inst. of the Confederate European commissioners, Mason and Slidell, reached Fortress Monroe, Va. The excitement over this seizure from under the British flag on the high seas was intense. The San Jacinto proceeded to Boston to land her prisoners in Fort Warren.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Roasted Peanuts Hard to Digest.
Peanuts eaten raw, thoroughly chewed, are not particularly objectionable if relished. When peanuts are roasted they are usually more or less burned. The large amount of fat which they contain is itself decomposed, and irritating acids are produced. Roasted peanuts are very difficult of digestion. They are, in fact, fried in their own fat.

Differing Terms for Coins.

The language of money differs in different parts of the United States. On the Pacific coast the usual term for a quarter dollar is two bits. In the rural communities of New York and New England the people still talk of shillings, referring to the old colonial coin of twelve and a half cents.

Fine-Feathered Vulture.

In the South American forests is found the most beautifully colored of all vultures, and it is the true king over the black vultures and turkey buzzards. Its plumage is of a delicate cream, with black quills, and the head is brilliantly colored with red and orange.

124 Galena Avenue

"All of the indictments are at variance with the proof," declared Mr. Erwin. "There is absolutely no evidence that this man came to his death by a blow from the fist. The doctors the state called as their witnesses state that the wound on the upper lip could not have been caused by the bare fist, and the other blow, the one on the neck, the physicians declare to have no connection with his death, and that when he received that, he had already received a mortal blow and was dying.

"Ira Mighell, upon being told that the man had insulted Lulu Foster, asked her who it was. She said that she did not know, and Mighell walked toward the man, not knowing who he was and it was impossible that he should have any idea of murder in his heart at the time. We do not think of courts at these times. There isn't a man in this room, or in Dixon, or in the United States who wouldn't resent an insult to a lady friend or relative, and at a time like that the first thought would be to go to the man and demand an explanation. It does not mean that he intends to start a fight with him. Perhaps the man was mistaken, thought he was speaking to someone else, or that there was some misunderstanding somewhere, so Mighell walked toward Kincaid, not knowing who the man was, and on the way he spoke to people he knew and his voice was natural, and it was natural when he stepped beside Kincaid and said, 'Partner, do you know what lady you're speaking to?'

"Kincaid then said, 'What the hell is it to you?' and swinging his fist at Mighell, strikes him in the pit of the stomach. It was then that Mighell struck the first blow. It was with the back of the hand, and did no damage whatever. Kincaid then attempted another blow at Mighell, lost his footing and fell with his face against the iron railing of the bridge. It was then by his own act that Emory Kincaid received the blow which killed him. His face striking on the bridge caused the wound on the upper lip and fractured the skull, causing the hemorrhage in the brain. While this hemorrhage, however, was spilling blood into the base of the brain, and before the pressure on the brain was great enough to cause unconsciousness Kincaid raised up, threw his fist into the air as though about to strike Ira Mighell, and it was then that Mighell struck the second, last and hardest of the blows, the one on the neck, which the doctors say had nothing to do with the death. Kincaid then started to walk and one of the men standing near caught him under the arms and eased him to the floor of the bridge. They testify that they did not allow his head to strike on the floor; they laid him down gently. There were blood spots on the iron railing and the only time they could have gotten there was when Kincaid himself fell against it after losing his balance when he struck at Mighell.

"The state's witnesses say that the blows they heard followed each other almost immediately. Now, your Honor, if the blows had been hard ones, they could not have followed each other with any degree of rapidity although they could if they were light ones.

"While the blows are being struck Mighell said, 'I'll teach you to insult a lady.' Was he going to kill him to teach him? You can't teach dead men. Would he pick out the most prominent highway in the city if he did intend to murder him? Would he do it on the bridge that connects our two sides of the city, where it was light and where the crowd was surging back and forth and while there were three friends of the man standing right next to him? That doesn't sound reasonable. There is absolutely no testimony that shows any viciousness on the part of the accused man. He went on about his business after the affray with no thought of trouble ensuing and was perfectly calm and unconcerned when the officers arrested him and this shows he had no idea of killing Kincaid or that he had any idea he had even seriously injured him.

"Fourteen years, your Honor, 14 years in the penitentiary, for what? For murder, and murder founded on such facts as there. I say that it would be a great injustice to force Ira Mighell to spend ten minutes in the penitentiary.

"There has been a wave of crime sweeping over this broad land of ours. The newspapers are full of it. We have had it right up here in Ogle county." Here Mr. Erwin enumerated various prominent murder cases which are before the public eye all over the country at present. "The jury," went on Mr. Erwin, "was influenced and prejudiced by these murder cases that are being written up in the papers. Their minds were full of it and I have found out since the trial that several of the jurors have made statements that show they were prejudiced and unfit to try the case. One of the jurors is said to have remarked, before he was called to be examined, 'Well, let's go and hang him. If I had my way he'd hang.'

"Another juror, in making his grocery rounds previous to the trial, is said to have declared to a lady customer of his that a letter from Ira Mighell threatening the life of Emory Kincaid, had been found in Kincaid's pocket. Another said he would free a murderer.

"I do not ask you, please the court, to let these things have any weight in your decision, for I believe that to bring it to your notice I should make affidavits covering the statements. However, I mention it that I may make plain my theory that the crime wave had a great deal to do with influencing the minds of the jurors."

Judge Farrand then stopped Attorney Erwin and said that as noon was near court would adjourn until 1:30. Mighell stood up from where he had been sitting by the side of his mother and step-father, who had entered as the arguments were being put forth, the mother nervously eyeing the presiding judge with evident anxiety as she occasionally wiped a tear from her cheek. The prisoner took his mother's hand and pressed it, smiling bravely, and then bent over and kissed her. His step-father then reached out his trembling old hand and the boy took it and then the old gentleman put his other hand on Ira's shoulder and pulling him to him, kissed him on the cheek.

The little scene there in the almost deserted court room, with the sheriff waiting to march the prisoner back to his cell, was touching to those who happened to see it, and then hurried on to leave the pathetic, anxious little group.

States Attorney's Argument.

Mr. Erwin also attacked States Attorney Edwards' address to the jury in which he asked "Where is Lulu Foster? She's the defense's witness. Why didn't they call her?" The defense's objection to this statement was that there was no evidence in the case that the woman had been called by the defense, or that she was their witness. He also objected to the states attorney's statement to the jury: "Are you going to let the pardon board fix this man's sentence so he can get out in 11 months, or are you going to make it murder and fix the punishment yourself?" on the grounds that the statement was highly prejudicial.

Curtilment of Question.

Mighell's attorney also claimed that the curtilment of questions asked the veniremen regarding carrying presumption of innocence through the trial was error, and he read court decisions in which the higher tribunals have held juries must carry a presumption of innocence until they have gotten all the evidence and have retired to deliberate.

On the Instructions.

Following his argument along these lines Mr. Erwin claimed the court had erred in some of the instructions. In refusing to give the defense's instructions "The jurors are the judges of the law as well as the facts," the attorney claimed the court had exercised too much caution.

The eighth instruction of the state, however, was a bone of great contention on the part of the defense, in that it is claimed by Mr. Erwin, the court's instruction that the jury "shall then find the defendant guilty of murder" is preemptory and unjust in that it negates the question of self-defense.

LAND SHOW EXPECTED TO BREAK RECORD

The third annual land show of the United States Land and Irrigation exposition will be held in the Coliseum at Chicago Nov. 18 to Dec. 9, Franklin K. Lane, chairman of the interstate commerce commission will open the show.

Demand for space this year has exceeded the limit of the Coliseum and annex. Twenty states and Canada will show exhibits, farming implement companies will have booths and the United States government will have an irrigation display. Rivalry between states where desert land has been reclaimed and others where swamps have been drained will be a feature. The last week of the land show is the week of the Fat Stock show, so it will be possible to attend both shows this week.

SON BORN.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Levan of Brookings, S. D., are the happy parents of a son. Mrs. Levan was Miss Katherine McIntyre. Miss Mary McIntyre, T. N., left for Brookings to care for her sister.

DEMENT TOWN
DOINGS

Apropos the "white mantle" that started to fall yesterday, remember a man can still claim he's young as long as he can roll a snowball.

The papers report that at a recent wedding in Janesville the surprised choir chanted the 76th Psalm "God Be Merciful." No comment is made, however, to show who the song was for, the bride or the groom.

There are some girls in Dixon who commence to think their "steadies" who have refused all bait for proposals, are like an hour glass, in that the more time they have the less sand.

Friends of the Millers and M. Gaffney, who went hunting the other day say that there is a moral in their experience. It appears that during the day a three-legged rabbit wended his way in front of Harv., but Harv., hesitated about killing the little cripple. However, according to the reports, Fat, who hadn't shot a thing all day, blazed away at the aforesaid three-legged animal—and got him. The moral, according to our informants, comes in with the subsequent theft of all the game they got.

When the World Ends.

Somebody will be trying to get somewhere in a balloon.

It will be reported authentically that Duke Abruzzi and Kate Elkins are about to be married.

Rockefeller will still be telling the bible class how to save $10,000 a year on a $10 a week salary.

They will still be digging away at the Panama canal.

The 'steamed' in a sense, News will be announcing new features which never materialize.

Some aviator will be breaking the altitude record.

We'll never have enough beefsteak gravy to go around.

Why Newspaper Men Are Crabs

Do you take your notes down in shorthand?

It must be nice to get free tickets to the theatre.

Are all reporters college graduates?

How do you know where there's a fire?

Don't put my name in the paper when you tell about my accident.

Do you make the pictures we see in the papers?

Getting Orders.

Downing (the grocer)—Well, how many orders did you get this morning?

Bridges—I got two orders in one house.

Downing—That's good. What were they?

Bridges—One was to get out, and the other was to stay out.

Goose Hollow Dope.

Prof. Hank Simms, conductor of the Silver Comet band says he would just as soon be conductor of a freight train or a street car where a feller can have some peace once in awhile. There is so much jealousy in the band that every feller has to have a solo part except the drummers, who thus far have been able to satisfy with duets. The last concert the band gave lasted all night, and then they wouldn't have stopped but for the fact that the slippery trombone player had to go to work in the sawmill.

Uncle Ezra Perkins sez, 'Jedgin' by the switches and rats he believes there are some women who haven't got an honest hair in their heads. Nineteen Goose Hollow families are not on speakin' terms just now on account of the row in the Hardsell church choir. The alto's brother has given the soprano's cousin a black eye and the sopranner's uncle had the alto's father arrested for 'stealin' a hog away back in 1866. Army Tubbs, the voiceless tenor, is so disgusted he has given up his job in the livery stable and left town.

Harold Hanks, who was married last week to Miss Anastacia Perkins, has gone back home to live with his folks because his wife, who teaches school, could not support him in the manner to which he was accustomed.

Determined to Get Next.
"One of these days you'll see business is going to the dogs," said the cheerless person. "I don't believe it," replied Mr. Dustin Stax. "But if that time comes, you'll find me running one of the biggest bennels on earth."

Gentle Hint.
A miserable-sinner-looking clergyman sought advice of an experienced preacher, and was told, among other things: "If you are preaching of hell—your ordinary expression of countenance will do; but if you preach of heaven, I should try to look a little more cheerful."—Christian Register.

TUBERCULOSIS AS A STATE PROBLEMQUESTION BEING TAKEN UP AT PUBLIC MEETINGS IN VARIOUS PLACES.

So valuable has become the campaign of the Illinois State Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis in bettering the sanitary conditions and environments of the wage earners, that the organization has received the endorsement not only of local labor bodies, but of the American Federation of Labor. In fact, the Illinois State Federation of Labor has now under consideration a plan of President Wright to make each local organization an auxiliary of the Illinois State Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The Illinois association, which is affiliated with the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, has been carrying on through local organizations a vital work in checking the advance of death from tuberculosis. One in every ten dies from this disease—Illinois' annual toll to The Great White Plague being 8,000. This means that almost every hour throughout the year some one in Illinois dies from tuberculosis.

The great and urgent need in this work is an effective organization in each large city and county in the state and to this end plans are under way for public meetings in East St. Louis, Belleville, Alton, Aurora, Van Dalia and other places. The meetings in most of the cities have been called by the mayors, following the circulation of petitions by doctors, lawyers, educators and laymen who want to operate in the great work.

The ladies of St. Patrick's church will hold a cake and bread sale next Saturday at Jones & Slain's on Galena avenue 70 3

HARMON

Peter Blackburn was in Harmon last Friday.

Peter O'Hare of Sterling was in Harmon last Friday. He went down to Green river to look after a bridge he has been putting across the river in East Grove township. It was nearly finished. The bad rainy weather kept them back from their work.

Mike Monasty was out from Sterling with O'Hare in a buggy.

Roy Swab of Hazelhurst is now visiting with his mother in Harmon. It has been a long time since he has been here. He is working for the C. B. & N. R. R. Co., at Hazelhurst, as agent at the depot in that place.

Our people seem to be contracting colds this wet, rainy weather.

Mrs. Manning has been visiting in Sterling and Rock Falls for a few days.

Peter Huey, one of the barbers in Harmon, has been having a barber sign painted on the post of the door of the buildings he occupies.

Last Thursday there were a large number of farmers in town as it was wet and they could not work in the fields.

Mrs. F. E. Parker has been on the sick list for several days. She is now better and able to be out again.

L. B. Swab has been building a new chicken house, covering it all over with this patent roofing to make it warm and dry for the chickens.

Henry Brill had quite a hunt for his ducks. They got away and it took some time to find them. When found they were in the cornfield, helping themselves. They are fine ones and very large.

The merchants have been cleaning the windows in their stores and now they have a fine appearance.

H. E. Vroman continues to buy poultry. The prices are not very high at the present time.

We do not see many autos out this wet weather.

The village board met last Monday evening to transact business of the village. They do not seem to do anything. Suppose they will when they see fit.

F. H. Kugler has been selling quite a number of those truck wagons with a patent hub. They seem to give good satisfaction to those buying them. They claim that they run a horse lighter than a common wagon.

Samuel Manning shipped coops of chickens to Chicago last Friday morning.

The skating rink to be run by Edward Ryan has its opening Saturday, Nov. 18. They expect to have a good run this winter. It is a great amusement for the young folks. It is much more comfortable than skating on the ice in some pond or lake.

William Ryan, who runs a restaurant, will serve oysters to the people this winter. He keeps up a good restaurant for the people of Harmon and vicinity.

Fred Gledan says that he feels as if his ribs were broken, he has such severe pains in his breast.

Christ Smith of Nelson was in town Saturday.

James Frank was in town Saturday afternoon on business with the bank.

Hugh Blackburn of Marion was in Harmon Saturday afternoon trading at the stores.

We had a very hard rain at Harmon Saturday afternoon, which flooded everything. It will stop work in the fields for some days as they are so soft and muddy that it was impossible for a team to draw a load of corn out of the field, and not even now, are they much better, but it is freezing fast. There are hundreds of acres of corn yet in the fields to be husked.

John McKeel has been doing some of his fall plowing on the stone eighty which he has rented for five years. He has a fine crop of corn on it this year. The yield will be large. The oats were good, but he lost half of it by the constant rain on it. He was so late in getting it threshed much of it spoiled in the shock.

PINE CREEK.

A very heavy rain and hail storm visited this locality last Saturday afternoon, many window glass being broken.

Nordby, Mrs. T. E. Elde and Mrs. Jacob Edwards, where an operation was successfully performed. Mrs. Edwards is there to have treatment on one of her limbs, which has had a running sore for a number of years. She is expected to be operated upon.

The amenities of political campaigning are amusingly illustrated by a story told by a Southern Congressman.

It appears that during the course of a stump speech delivered some years ago by John Sharp Williams in Mississippi he was interrupted by a sudden yell from a man in the audience.

"I have been robbed by pickpockets!"

"I did not know that there were any republicans present," promptly suggested Mr. Williams, in order to get a laugh.

"Oh, there ain't, there ain't!" roared the unhappy man. "I'm the only one!"

Costly Eyeteeth.

"I guess you must have passed a lot of time at the dentist's when he was in New York," said Johnny Green.

"Why do you think so?" queried his ma.

"Cause I heard him tell a man today that it cost him nearly $300 to get his eyeteeth cut," replied Johnny.

The Mission of the Mortar.

Two Irishmen were looking at bricklayers busily working. "I say, Pat, kin yer till me what kapes them bricks together?" asked one.

"Sure, it's the mortar, Mike," was the answer. "That's where yer wrong," returned Mike; "the mortar's what kapes them apart!"

The Diegrece.

"I'd be ashamed to go round begging," said the prosperous citizen.

"Takes all kinds up people t' make a world," rejoined the tramp. "Here you is too proud t' beg, an' I'm too proud t' work."

DOUBTFUL POWDER.

Darkey Expert Put it to the Test with a Vengeance.

One day, after listening to a story particularly offensive with age, Lincoln McConnell, the Georgia evangelist, told this:

An old darkey went into a store down in Georgia and asked:

"Say, boss, you got any gun powder heah?"

"We, we have gun powder."

"Lemme see some of that theah gun powder."

The dealer showed him some.

"Pore a little of that powder in my hand."

The old darkey took the powder near the light, ran his forefinger around and around in it, looked at it critically, and then smelled it two or three times.

"And you say this heath is powder?"

"Yes," answered the dealer sharply; "that is powder. What is the matter with it?"

"Dunno, boss"—the darkey shook his head doubtfully—"but hit smells to me like it's done been shot off befoah."

HE KNEW.

Mabel—Dora has such melting eyes.

Jack—That's because she is so hot-tempered.

An Air with Real Air.

During one of the political tours of Mr. Cleveland, in which he was accompanied by Secretary Olney, he arrived during a severe storm at a town in which he was to speak. As he entered the carriage with his friends and was driven from the station the rain changed to hail, and immense stones battered and rattled against the vehicle. A brass band, rather demoralized by the storm, stuck bravely to its post and played.

"That is the most realistic music I ever heard," remarked the President.

"What are they playing?" asked the Secretary of State.

"Hail to the Chief—with real hail!" rejoined Mr. Cleveland.—Harper's Weekly.

Found the Proper Head.

A bright girl in a large school applied to her teacher for leave to be absent half a day, on a plea that her mother had received a telegram which stated that company was on the way.

"It's my father's half sister and her three boys," said the pupil, anxiously, "and mother doesn't see how she can do without me, because those boys always act so dreadfully."

The teacher referred her to the printed list of reasons which justified absence, and asked if her case came under any of them.

"I think it might come under this head, Miss Rules," said the girl, pointing, as she spoke to the words "Domestic affliction."

The Tables Turned.

The amenities of political campaigning are amusingly illustrated by a story told by a Southern Congressman.

It appears that during the course of a stump speech delivered some years ago by John Sharp Williams in Mississippi he was interrupted by a sudden yell from a man in the audience.

"I have been robbed by pickpockets!"

"I did not know that there were any republicans present," promptly suggested Mr. Williams, in order to get a laugh.

"Oh, there ain't, there ain't!" roared the unhappy man. "I'm the only one!"

Costly Eyeteeth.

"I guess you must have passed a lot of time at the dentist's when he was in New York," said Johnny Green.

"Why do you think so?" queried his ma.

"Cause I heard him tell a man today that it cost him nearly $300 to get his eyeteeth cut," replied Johnny.

The Mission of the Mortar.

Two Irishmen were looking at bricklayers busily working. "I say, Pat, kin yer till me what kapes them bricks together?" asked one.

"Sure, it's the mortar, Mike," was the answer. "That's where yer wrong," returned Mike; "the mortar's what kapes them apart!"

The Diegrece.

"I'd be ashamed to go round begging," said the prosperous citizen.

"Takes all kinds up people t' make a world," rejoined the tramp. "Here you is too proud t' beg, an' I'm too proud t' work."

NO PLACE TO LINGER IN.

Veracious Account of the Difficulty of Lincoln's Farmhand.

Professor A. L. Lowell, the new president of Harvard, paused in one of his recent lectures and smiled.

"That Governmental difficulty," he said, "was great—as great as the difficulty of Lincoln's farmhand."

"Two farmhands, Lincoln used to say, were set upon by a huge bull while crossing a rocky field. One managed to gain a tree. The other took refuge in a hole that proved to have an exit in the rear."

"The man who had chosen the hole was no sooner in at one end than he was out at the other. With a bellow the bull made for him. He turned and again shot like lightning through the hole. The bull once more bore down upon him, and once more he was in and out of his hole."

"This strange pursuit kept up some ten minutes or more. At first it mystified the farmhand up in the tree. Then it angered him."

"Hey," he shouted, "ye danged nincompoop, why don't ye stay in the hole?"

"The bull was dashing from one end of the hole to the other at great speed, and the man was bobbing in and out desperately. He heard, however, his comrade's shout, and found time before his next brief disappearance to shout back:

"Danged nincompoop yerself! There's a bear in the hole!"

REASSURING.

Mrs. Diggs—James, there's surely a man under the bed.

Diggs—Then let him stay there.

Mrs. Diggs—But he might come out and shoot me.

Diggs—Don't worry; maybe he has nothing with him but a butcher knife or a stiletto.

All He Wanted.

One morning not long ago there burst into the office of a physician in Tacony, Pennsylvania, an excited individual, who, as he perceived the doctor just disappearing into his consulting room with a patient, exclaimed:

"Doctor! Doctor! Just one moment!"

"I'll see you shortly," was the curt professional response.

"Only a second, Doctor! Only a second is what I want!" protested the perturbed one.

"I'll see you shortly," reiterated the physician, with increasing impatience.

Whereupon, with a sigh, the man took a seat in the general reception hall. His excitement soon subsided, for he read the morning paper through a number of magazines, and played awhile with the Doctor's cat.

Then, after a period of half an hour, the Doctor reappeared, and, in an air of great condescension, said to the erstwhile excited person:

"Now, sir, I am at your service. Your turn has come. What can I do for you?"

"Oh, nothing special," was the reply. "I only dropped in to tell you that your neighbor's cows have escaped from the yard and are now having a fine time among your flower-beds."

Horse Sense.

Customer—Why, I thought you called him "the colt?"

Ostler—Sure, yer honor, and that's the name he's had for the last twenty years, and he sticks to it like a respectable baste, the same as yourself!

A Labor Saver.

"See here," said the irate roomer to the chambermaid, "don't you ever sweep under the bed?"

"I always do," answered the girl innocently, "it's so much handier than using a dustpan."

Bewildering.

Ted—So it turned out that the prisoner was really insane.

Ned—Yes. He lost his mind trying to follow the hypothetical question put to him by the prosecuting attorney.

Low Ideal.

Old Fashioned Mother—Arise, son; the early bird gets the worm, you know.

Lazy Son—Mother, would you have me beat some poor little bird out of a worm?

He Would That.

Miss Blue—You'd drive a man to drink, you would, Joel Jinks.

Mr. Jinks—You bet I would. Fifteen cents from station to Mansion House. Connect with both trains.

Caught.

Bill—Hear the story about the pencil?

Jill—No; what is it?

Bill—No point to it!

DOES PROHIBITION PROHIBIT.

Here's the Tale of a Man Who Has His Doubts.

Spurred on by newspaper taunts, possibly, a plain-clothes man of the Atlanta police set out one day to detect violations of the Georgia prohibition law. On Decatur street he met an old negro whose appearance he considered "suspicious."

"Say, uncle," he whispered with a wink, "do you know where I can get some whiskey?"

"I spec' maybe I kin git yer some ef yer gim me do money," replied the suspected one.

"Well, here is a two-dollar bill," said the plain-clothes man. "I'll wait in the alley here. Now hurry back."

"Yessah, boss, ef y'll jes' hol' dis box er shoes for me," and the policeman had the box under his arm before he knew it, while the darkey shambled off down the street, turning the first corner.

Thinking he was on a warm trail and would soon have an important prisoner and witness "with the goods on," the sleuth waited in patience. An hour went by. He was getting tired. Two hours. Still no sign of the messenger.

Weary and discouraged, he returned to the police station. Suddenly he remembered the shoes under his arm, and decided to have a look. The box contained, carefully wrapped, a full quart bottle of corn whiskey.

A Kansas Tragedy.

Here is a sad chicken story: Mrs. W. W. Cochran does not keep chickens, but there is an old hen which for some reason became attached to her household and was a great pet. One day the hen wanted to set; and Mrs. Cochran allowed it to and after a short time the hen had a brood of chickens, which the Cochran family was very fond of. One day the little chickens were out in the rain and nearly drowned; Mrs. Cochran rushed out in the rain, gathered them up, wrapped them carefully in a shawl and put them on a chair next to the kitchen stove. The chickens were alive and all right. A big fat woman came in to Mrs. Cochran's to get out of the rain and sat down by the kitchen stove to get dry. Mrs. Cochran went into the kitchen, after a while, and looking around said to her daughter: "Katie, where are my chickens?"

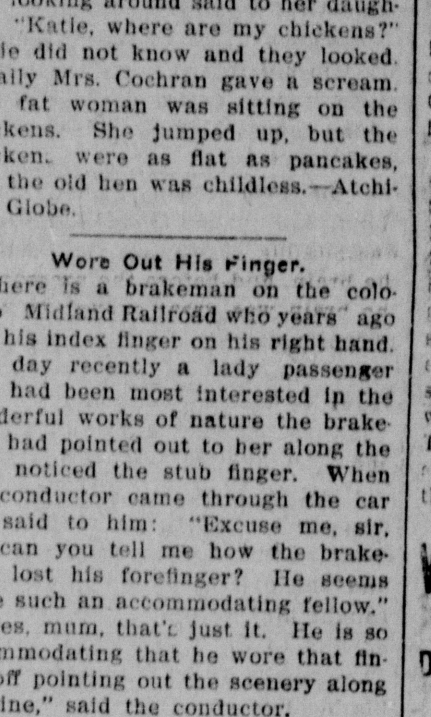

Katie did not know and they looked. Finally Mrs. Cochran gave a scream. The fat woman was sitting on the chickens. She jumped up, but the chicken, were as flat as pancakes, and the old hen was childless.—Atchison Globe.

Wore Out His Finger.

There is a brakeman on the Colorado Midland Railroad who's right hand index finger on his right hand. One day recently a lady passenger who had been most interested in the wonderful works of nature the brakeman had pointed out to her along the road noticed the stub finger. When the conductor came through the car she said to him: "Excuse me, sir, but can you tell me how the brakeman lost his forefinger? He seems to be such an accommodating fellow."

"Yes, mum, that's just it. He is so accommodating that he wore that finger off pointing out the scenery along the line," said the conductor.

AT LAST.

"Your first two wives you set aside—But your troubles, I hope are past."

"Ah yes," the cobbler man replied, "I'm sticking to my last."

Most Unkindly Cut.

"Did your uncle, the eminent surgeon, ever operate on you, Chollie?"

"He did."

"I suppose he did not make it expensive for you?"

"He did. He cut me out of his will."

Lace Utility Bodice

Photograph by Underwood & Underwood, N. Y.

WHEN Milady starts out for her week-end visit, economy of packing, as well as variety in little accessories, is prominent in her mind. This little lace garment will turn a sombre costume into an evening toilet or make a low-necked gown suitable for afternoon tea, hence it is called "Utility," and its right to the name will easily be seen.

IN WHITE OR BLUE SERGE MADE UP FROM OUTWORN HAT

Complete Outfit That Can Not Help but Look Well Made Up of Either Material.

Novel Bag Favors Easily Made From Material After It Has Served Original Purpose.

Either navy or white serge looks well made in this style. The skirt is a three-piece pattern, having a wide front, and sides joining up center back; the front is joined to sides by Carefully preserve the white or light colored Milan, horse hair, Tuscan, chip or Panama hat. If it cannot be made over into headgear for another summer, it certainly can be transformed into a bag for holding handkerchiefs simply by flattening out the brim, facing it with a shirring of chiffon of whatever shade is to be the color scheme of the bag, finishing its edge with a quilling of narrow ribbon and then putting a deep, full lining of heavy silk into the crown of the hat.

This lining is made in the usual way with drawstrings at its top, but instead of being tucked backward into the crown, it is drawn upward by supplementary straps of ribbon attached to its sides, and these in turn are joined to the center of the strings or handle attached to two opposite sides of the hat's brim. To make the illusion of the hat more complete, the crown is sometimes trimmed with large bows of ribbon or wreaths of flowers, but its top must always be kept flat so that it may set squarely upon any smooth surface.

Another novel handkerchief bag which will do as a favor for either a man or a girl at a dance may be made from a half yard length of China silk.

One end of the silk is hemmed over a small wooden embroidery ring, across which has first been stretched a piece of the same silk to form the bottom of the bag, whose other end is drawn over a second embroidery ring, which is left uncovered. When held upright by this second ring the bag is pipe shaped and has an open top, but it may be securely closed by twisting its center and dropping the upper ring squarely upon the mass of silk.

Scissors Case.
A pretty scissors case can be made by cutting two triangular pieces of cardboard a little larger than the size of the scissors they are to cover, and a small triangular-shaped piece to serve as a flap to the case.

Cover all with silk, satin or any fancy piece of material, turning in the edges and whipping the silk on the boards. Now sew the longest edges of the board together and the flap to the short edge of one board. Sew a pretty cord, gilt if possible, all the way around the edge of the case and fasten the flap down with a small bow or ribbon or a fancy button. This would make a dainty and useful holiday gift if fitted with a good pair of scissors.

Her Gloves.
For tailored suit wear, for mornings, shopping occasions and general work, the always popular capekins in the pretty autumn tans will be the glove she will adopt.

For the afternoons, however, and the evening, she will divide her choice; for the soft, velvet-like sueded will be almost as fashionable as the smooth-finished and fine French kidskins. Plain white, of course, will be very greatly worn, but pale tans—biscuit, champagne, delicate mode, pearl gray and the creamy yellows will also come in for a due share of attention.

White Gaiters Are Worn.
The woman who has pumps and does not wish to get high shoes until late in the winter can now use her cloth gaiters and be very much in style. White ones are quite the fashion, and their rivals are pearl gray. These are worn with the black shoes with all kinds of gowns that are short and for the street.

a wrapped seam, and buttons add a finish at foot. The fronts of coats are prettily cut, and are laid to sides with a wrapped seam, buttons forming the trimming. The large collar is faced with black and white plaid silk.

Hat of navy straw, trimmed with wide glace ribbon.

Materials required: 5 yards 46 inches wide, 2 dozen and four buttons, 1/2 yard silk for facing collar, 4 1/2 yards satin for lining coat.

Up-to-Date Stationery.
It is entirely a matter of choice whether one shall use white or tinted writing paper, and whether that paper shall have a linen or, as it is called, lawnette finish or a smooth surface. Domestic paper inclines to the lawnette finish and to somewhat decided, but quiet, colors, such as the new Helen pink (named in honor of the president's daughter), fawn color, which is being used a great deal, the popular orchid-lavender, and the newly introduced Continental buff—Harper's Bazar.

Favored Styles.
The tendency is largely towards suits having trimming on the collars, cuffs, and revers and occasionally on the skirts. Many of the recent models have revers which almost close in the front, thus making them practicable for cold weather. A number have the long single revers which can be fastened over on the left side. Others coats are made in shield effect and have small standing or turnover collars.

PRELATES OFF TO ROME

Bon Voyage for Mgr. Falconio and Archbishop Farley.

Parishioners and Public Unite in Touching Testimonial to Catholic High Churchmen.

New York, Nov. 15.—Six thousand children sang bon voyage in St. Patrick's cathedral to Archbishop John Farley of New York and the Most Rev. Diomedo Falconio, apostolic delegate to Washington, who sailed for Rome, where they will be elevated to the college of cardinals shortly after their arrival.

Thousands of parishioners lining their route from the cathedral to the Hudson river waved them farewell. An escort of fifty officials and monsignors of the diocese accompanied them to the river and aboard the steamer Roccade, on which 5,000 clergy and 1,000 laymen crossed the Hudson with them to the Jersey shore.

BALLOONIST MIX A SUICIDE

American Said to Have Jumped Overboard from Channel Steamer.

Paris, Nov. 15.—It is reported that Edgar W. Mix, the American balloonist, committed suicide by jumping from a channel steamer on Sunday night. The report was made to United States Consul Mason in Paris by the American consul, James B. Milner, at Calais, who in turn received the information from the French maritime inspector.

The boat from which Mr. Mix is supposed to have jumped was the mail steamer that left Dover, England, at 11 o'clock Sunday night for Calais.

SAY REYES PLANS REVOLT

Mexicans Declare War Preparations Are Being Rushed.

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 15.—Active preparations for a revolt in Mexico to be headed by General Bernardo Reyes are being made here. This declaration was made by leading Maderistas. General Reyes made a sweeping denial of the assertion.

The Maderistas gave out a statement that a hospital corps for the Revistas left here over the International and Great Northern for Laredo, supplied with bandages and other hospital appliances, to prepare for fighting.

700 ITALIANS FALL IN BATTLE

Turks Avert that Late Fighting Was Serious Check for Enemy.

Constantinople, Nov. 15.—It is claimed that the fighting last Friday at Tripoli proved a most serious check to the Italians, whose left wing was almost annihilated, there being 700 Italians killed. The Turks are reported to have lost only eighty men and twenty-two wounded.

According to the newspapers Great Britain, France and Russia have assured Turkey that they will not allow the Italians to bombard Smyrna, Salonika or Beirut or to blockade the Dardanelles.

Russia Coercing Persia.
London, Nov. 15.—The Daily News in a dispatch from St. Petersburg says that it is rumored that Russia has directed Minister Polkevsky, as soon as a responsible ministry has been formed at Tenevan, to notify the cabinet that further exercise of the authority of Treasurer General Shuster within the Russian zone will be regarded as an unfriendly act.

FURTHER PROOF ADDUCED

Position of Boom Plate of Maine Clearly Indicates Exterior Explosion.

Havana, Nov. 15.—The outside boom plate of the Maine, at about frame 28 on the port side, has been found to have been blown up and folded upward and over toward the keel, overlying the inner bottom, where the six-inch magazine rested.

This would seem to afford the strongest evidence of an external explosion.

Ambassador Presents Credentials.
Rome, Nov. 15.—United States Ambassador Thomas J. O'Brien presented his credentials to King Victor Emmanuel.

SIENKIEWICZ IS SHOT

Author of Quo Vadis Is Mark for Shot of a Companion.

EXPECTS NO LANDSLIDE

William J. Bryan Discusses Politics in Chicago.

Nebraska Man Restates that He Will Not Be Again Candidate for President.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—William Jennings Bryan attended a banquet at the Hotel LaSalle, called upon United States Senator Kern, and left later for St. Louis. He discussed politics and wound up by reasserting that he would not again be a candidate for president.

Asked for an opinion concerning the recent developments in politics he said:

"The returns, taking the country over, indicate no landslide in prospect toward either party. Republican gains in the east indicate that predatory interests are lining up back of the president. Every inch of ground will have to be fought over. We have another session of congress which will affect the campaign and, of course, no one can speak with any certainty in advance."

"All that is apparent now is that the campaign will be a sure enough fight and not a one-sided contest."

EVIDENCE IN QUINN CASE

Detectives Back from Jackson, Mich., with a Number of Affidavits.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Detectives attached to the Kensington police station returned from Jackson, Mich., with affidavits to be used in the prosecution of Mrs. Jane Quinn, accused of killing her husband, John M. Quinn, Nov. 2 last.

If it is found impossible to use these affidavits in obtaining an order to have the body of John McDonald, Mrs. Quinn's first husband, exhumed, then Dr. J. H. Demay, Coroner P. A. Hobart and J. W. Kelly, who saw McDonald dying, will be subpoenaed. A special telegram from Jackson, Mich., declares that they will testify that there was evidence that McDonald was poisoned.

STRIKE IS FIZZLING OUT

New York City Government Beats Dis-satisfied Street Cleaners.

New York, Nov. 15.—The strike of the drivers of the street cleaning department has fizzled out. Commissioner Edwards has more than enough hired strike-breakers, and civil service recruits are pouring in. The department, having made steady progress in Brooklyn, has gotten under full headway in Manhattan and the Bronx. The police, supported by the magistrates, have repressed disorder vigorously and brick throwers and hooters have disappeared from the streets.

Threats of the strike leaders to bring about a general strike of teamsters did not materialize.

Breaking a Wisdom Monopoly. "I'm afraid the country suffered a great loss when they failed to send our eloquent and able friend back to congress." "Not at all," replied Senator Sorghum. "The sense of the plain people again prevailed. Why should the lecture platforms be robbed that the brainy men may be assembled to listen to one another, where instruction is superfluous?"

What Does Your Aura Reveal?

THE JOY IN A Joke on Man is uncertain, for the reason that Man is so covered with the thick coating of conceit, the joke never penetrates to his consciousness. It is like shooting an arrow at a rock wall.

Science shot an arrow at this rock wall in a recent discovery of Dr. Walker J. Kilner, for years at the head of the X-ray work in London's greatest hospital, but the rock wall will never find it out, and it is this rock wall of assurance and self-conceit with which Man surrounds himself that delays his education.

Dr. Kilner discovered the aura, a sort of halo that floats down from the head and outlines the entire body. You may not know it, but you have one; every one has one, and this aura tells to the scientist many things the person it envelops would have kept secret. It tells the age, the temperament and the physical condition by its shape and color, and its size denotes the intellect.

"Very small auras," said Dr. Kilner, "indicate very small intellects, and the aura of a woman is invariably larger than the aura of a man. The smallest auras I have seen attend the body of man."

It will avail nothing to tell the man who reads that statement to read it again. The point to the discovery, that women have greater intellects than men, could never get through that rock wall. It is a joke on him, on his father, his grandfather and all his forefathers, but they will never know it. They are blind to all discoveries of a woman's superiority to man, and this blindness is a sort of bedevilment which every father has handed down to his son.

Many years ago, when men and women dwelt in caves, a man ewing his club through the air and declared he was the superior being, and as he had the superior brute strength, the women cowed a little lower in their corners of the cave and made no dispute.

Some thousands of years later, man discovered that he had a brain, and he devoted much time to its development while the women of his family did the work in the fields, and he again made the claim of superiority, and the women, stupefied by generations of burden-bearing, didn't know enough to doubt him.

Some haven't learned enough to doubt him yet, and in this day and generation look to man as the superior sex; they are the direct descendants of the woman who covered in the cave, the true daughters of the woman who worked like a dumb brute in the field.

It is the woman who looks dumbly at man, seeing in him a glorified being, who will carry all the problems of life to a successful solution, who will receive the greatest benefit from this discovery of Dr. Kilner.

With a little chemical screen before her eyes, she will look at the man whom she thought a giant of intellect, and see an aura so small it wouldn't make a lining for a pigmy's hat.

She will see as he really is the man who thought he was so great his vest would make the Lord an overcoat. She will discover with this chemical screen that if she trusts her future interest and her progress to a man with an aura so small he couldn't sit down in it without tearing it, she is going back to the plough in the fields.

She will discover by using her chemical screen from day to day and making comparisons, that man's aura is shrinking like a funnel union suit, and woman's aura is growing larger.

There are also many surprising discoveries awaiting her regarding a man's temperament, his age and his physical condition, not one of which he would have her know if he could prevent.

When chemical screens become as common articles of merchandise as eye glasses or lorgnettes, the education of the woman who trusts the affairs of the nation and home blindly to man, because he is man, will be materially hastened.

Little Turkeys

Take pork tenderloins and cut lengthwise through the middle, being careful not to cut in half; fill with dressing you would use for turkey; sew or pin together with toothpicks; bake for twenty minutes in a pan in which there is enough water to cover the bottom when baked. Make a gravy of water left in pan. Nice to add strip of bacon over top.

Soft Ginger Bread

One cup of molasses, four table spoons of melted butter, one teaspoon of soda, one cup of warm water, two cups of flour, one teaspoonful each of ginger and cinnamon. Add two well beaten eggs the last things before baking.

PEACH DESSERT—Take six ripe, juicy peaches, pare and stone; insert in place of each pit six chopped almonds, one maraschino cherry, one teaspoonful of maraschino liquid. Cover outside of peaches closely and evenly with grated coconut; chill thoroughly and serve with rich cream.

The Ancient Cannibal. It is an ancient cannibal; He smiles a happy smile, A missionary sleek and fat Has landed on the isle.

"And hast thou met dear Brother Jones Who came here some time past?" The cannibal he smiled a smile And coolly said, "We hast."

"And didst thou treat him well?" he said, "And take him to your midst?" The cannibal he smirked his lips And coolly said, "We didst."

Mr. Fly Bathes

"I can't believe," remarked a citizen the other day, "all this talk about the injurious character of the fly. I don't believe it, because I haven't seen any specific proof given, though I believe they may carry poisons a short distance."

"The fact is, there are very few animals or insects that are not cleanly. Watch the flies and you frequently can see one stop and rub his legs together in a scratching manner; then he'll go over his body and wings in the same way."

"If any foreign matters that can be broken get into a beehive, the bees will at once go to work and carry it out, speck by speck, and leave the hive or the honey in an immaculate condition."

"You can frequently see dogs rubbing their paws over their noses, to get rid of dirt."

"The English sparrow that is so much abused, and properly, I think, uses a nest for but one brood of birds. It will tear away the old nest and build another for a new brood."

"The hog, famed for his dirtiness, takes mud baths to clean his hide; and man has found that mud baths are good for skin affections."

"To sum it all up, people live a good deal like sheep in their ways of thinking. Cleanliness is a good thing, and nothing will add to length of life any more than it. Now, let this cleanliness idea be adopted by mankind in regard to the person. The human body is constantly giving off dead matter; it requires a daily bath to get rid of it; how many take it?"

Took It Literally
 He is a distinguished looking man and wears his hair a trifle long and as it is inclined to be wavy and is silvery white and quite thick it adds to his appearance. For a long time he has been going to one barber shop and his favorite is a man who has shaved him and cut his hair for years, but the barber is talkative.

The man was wrestling with a mental problem when he climbed into the chair and said "hair cut." Then he immediately fell into a reverie.

As usual the barber started his monolog and several times he broke into the thoughts of his customer. Finally losing patience while the knight of the razor and shears told a long, pointless story he said:

"Cut it short, Bill."

Then he lapsed into another reverie. Finally the barber said, "All right, sir, the job is finished."

Then for a time the air in that particular barber shop turned blue, for the barber had followed instructions literally, and instead of just trimming the hair he had "cut it close" and the distinguished looking citizen had the appearance of a convict.

Then he went home and for several days his wife told inquiring friends he was sick, but he was just waiting for his hair to grow out a trifle so his friends wouldn't notice his changed appearance.

Found His "Wad"

Harry — is commonly known to the "boys" as a good fellow, and one who isn't apt to put up much of a kick if he spends all his life allows him in one night's revel over the green fields of forgetfulness with bubble-blinking Bacchus.

But one night last week Harry met some friends and enjoyed a revel, after which he took a cab for home. On the way home he attempted to invoice. His roll was gone. He naturally thought he had been "touched."

He was sorry that any one posing as a friend was a thief, but he had his suspicions.

On preparing to retire his faith in friends in particular and mankind in general was restored when on removing a certain portion of his underclothing he found the missing greenbacks.

In his haste to get them into his trousers pocket he had tucked them inside his belt—and they dropped!

Married Young

An amusing incident happened some time ago in one of the Paris courts of justice. A vain, haughty woman was called as a witness, when the Magistrate inquired her age.

"Twenty-five last August," promptly replied the lady.

The next witness was a young man, who at once acknowledged that he was twenty-seven years of age.

"Are you related to the last witness?" queried the Magistrate.

"Yes," he replied, "I am her son."

"Ah!" mused the Magistrate, "your mother must have married very young."

Bee's Sting

The most practical and altogether effectual remedy for bee stings is to put ammonia on them immediately; this is a simple remedy, but the application of ammonia will give instant relief and prevent swelling.

"Good gracious! Look! What is it that is tossing that woman about from side to side in such a violent manner?" "Possibly she is trying to hold her tongue."

WHY SO WEAK?

KIDNEY TROUBLES MAY BE SAVING YOUR LIFE AWAY. DIXON PEOPLE HAVE LEARNED THIS FACT

When a healthy man or woman begins to run down without apparent cause, becomes weak, languid, depressed, suffers backache, headache, dizzy spells and urinary disorders, look to the kidneys for the cause of it all. Keep the kidneys well and they will keep you well. Doan's Kidney Pills make sick kidneys well.

Here is Dixon testimony to prove it. Mrs. William Toot, 512 W. Second St., Dixon, Ill., says: "I suffered for years from kidney complaint and my back ached persistently. I was so weak at times that I could not attend to my housework and nothing did me any good. Finally, I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Leake Bros. Co's Drug store, and they cured me. I feel that my experience should convince the most skeptical person of the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills. I know of a number of other people who have taken this remedy with great benefit" (Statement given February 5, 1907.)

RE-ENDORSEMENT

Mrs. Toot was interviewed on January 5, 1910, and she added to the above: "I have no hesitation in verifying my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. During the time that has elapsed, I have taken this remedy occasionally and it has always brought prompt and effective relief."

Illinois Solons Finally Vote Sine Die Adjournment

Governor Deneen's Proclamation Prohibiting the Legislature Gets Into Record, However.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 15.—The house weakened and voted sine die adjournment of the special session of the general assembly. The senate previously had voted to adjourn.

Governor Deneen's message prohibiting the general assembly got into the records of the house. It was read after that body had adopted its resolution of adjournment without day. Secretary Whitaker, from Governor Deneen's office, presented the proclamation of the state executive, fearing some point might be raised to prevent the adoption of the sine die resolution by the house.

David E. Shanahan of Chicago offered the sine die adjournment resolution and it was hurried across the corridor to the state senate, and that body concurred. Lieutenant Governor Oglesby, presiding officer of the senate, had authority by agreement among the members, to accept and put through with the gavel any sine die resolution the house might send.
